

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to an image-forming device for processing photosensitive media. The photosensitive media is of the type that includes microcapsules that encapsulate imaging material such as coloring
5 material. The image-forming device includes a photobleaching system that is adapted to eliminate or minimize undesired coloration in a final print.